

OGDEN TO HAVE ITS OWN MOVIES

After considering the propositions of the various commercial motion picture companies from every angle, the directors of the Ogden Publicity bureau, at a special meeting held at the Ogden State bank late yesterday afternoon, decided to investigate the proposition of purchasing a motion picture camera and having a local photographer operate it.

With that idea in mind, R. L. Noggle, the official photographer of the bureau, was commissioned to take a trip to Chicago.

It is Mr. Noggle's intention to leave for Chicago tomorrow and learn to operate a machine in the studios of a manufacturing company. While away, the photographer will endeavor to secure a line up of picture houses that will be willing to exhibit a reel of pictures taken in Ogden. He expects to be gone ten days.

It is the belief of the directors that the subject of giving Ogden the publicity desired by means of motion pictures can be secured by the foregoing method. With the various scenes of the canyon, the mountains and the cutoff to give features to the reels, the directors believe that such "movies" will be in demand.

CHARGES OGDEN MAN IS BIGAMIST

Charging that Louis Mace Barnes, formerly employed by the Merchants Light & Power company, has a wife living in Salt Lake as well as a wife in Ogden, the authorities of Salt Lake county telephoned Sheriff DeVine last night ordering the arrest of Barnes on the charge of wife desertion. The sheriff learned that Barnes had left Ogden on June 17 for the Panama canal. The Ogden wife, living at 225 Twenty-first street, where she has a small store, is heartbroken over the disclosure. The two were married in San Francisco eight years ago and have a daughter four years old and a son six years old. No information has been received here regarding wife No. 2 in Salt Lake.

SUNSHINE HERE ON TRIP TO COAST

Roy Williams, better known as "Crazy Sunshine" of East Aurora, N. Y., a scholar and close friend of Elbert Hubbard, arrived in Ogden this afternoon from Salt Lake City and the east, en route to San Francisco. "Sunshine" is taking what he terms an educational trip. He is selling copies and taking subscriptions for the Hubbard publications, "The Philistine" and "The Fra." He is also making little writeups of the cities visited.

"Sunshine" will stay in Ogden until Monday morning taking in points of interest and soliciting subscriptions for the publications. He left East Aurora February 9, and expects to reach San Francisco September 10. He said that he walked from Salt Lake to Ogden, 37 miles, this morning, in six hours which is the record.

Williams said that he was formerly the publisher of "The Sunshine Bulletin" at the Roycroft shop and that for about eighteen years he has been with Hubbard. It was on account of his connection with the Bulletin that he was given the name of "Crazy Sunshine."

DRILL TEAM OF SALT LAKE WINNER

By the narrow margin of three points, the Salt Lake Eagle drill team won the silver cup in the contest with Ogden last evening. The judges gave Salt Lake 88 points and Ogden 85 points. Salt Lake won the cup last year by a majority of 17 points.

Charles J. Coughlan of Idaho Falls, J. S. Bennett of Ely, and R. B. Phillips of Bingham were the judges and so evenly were the two teams matched that it took the judges an hour to give their decision. About 150 Salt Lake Eagles accompanied their team to Ogden to attend the closing event of the three-day convention of the Tri-State aeris.

CHOIR INVITED TO SAN DIEGO

The Ogden Tabernacle choir has accepted the invitation of the San Diego fair officials to visit San Diego at the time the choir goes to San Francisco in 1913. Professor Joseph Ballantyne made the announcement of the plans to the choir members yesterday.

To prepare early for the trip, a meeting between Willard Scowcroft, Director Ballantyne and Secretary J. D. Larson of the Ogden Publicity bureau was held yesterday afternoon. The bureau will co-operate with other organizations to assist the choir in all ways possible.

The invitation to have the choir sing in San Diego was sent to Professor Ballantyne by D. C. Coyllier, president of the fair association.

HARBERTSON IS PARASITE HAS SIXTY DAYS TO SERVE

In a wrestling match which was a joy to the fans and characterized by fast, aggressive work on the part of both men, Jack Harbertson, Ogden's favorite, conquered Henry Isrlinger, middleweight champion of Europe, in a most decisive manner last evening at the Orpheum theater and demonstrated to his friends not only that he is of real championship calibre in his class, but also that he is a different Jack than the man who wrestled the Austrian a couple of months ago. The first fall was obtained in 24 minutes, the second in 5-1-2 minutes.

The bout was a delight to the lover of the game from start to finish, as there was no stalling or resting, both men doing their best to carry the fight to the other whenever opportunity offered. It was evident as soon as time was called that there was something doing, the men waiting all preliminaries and fairly jumping at each other in their anxiety to start things. Not over two minutes after the bout shook hands Isrlinger had Jack standing on his head with a body hold, when suddenly the Austrian was seen to go sprawling to the other side of the ring with the Ogden boy atop of him. No one realized just what had happened, but with Isrlinger nursing a nose from which the claret was dripping Harbertson held the fact borne to them that there was a new Jack—one who had learned a thing or two since his last appearance before the public.

When a few minutes later Harbertson sent the foreigner spinning across the ring in a similar manner it was seen that this spectacular bit of work was accomplished by means of Jack placing one foot securely under his opponent's jaw where the purchase was good and then suddenly straightening out his leg, as if which was strictly legitimate and most wonderfully effective in ridding himself of his adversary. This little turn-over seemed to surprise Isrlinger a great deal and the spectators even more so and was the occasion for much applause. For it was thus made apparent that Jack had profited by his course of training with Ernest Karty, the latter having imitated the Ogden boy with some recent fighting spirit, a quality which Jack has been in need of.

Isrlinger tried his assortment of holds out whenever he was on top (which was seldom), including his favorite, the scissors. But they were of little avail, as even the scissors hold has no terrors for Harbertson when applied in a fair manner. Only twice was Jack in a position which might be declared dangerous, and from these he emerged with little trouble, by the simple means of opening the throttle a little wider than usual and putting on extra steam. Harbertson seemed to be there for just one purpose and that was to show the foreigner that the latter's reputation was very much inflated and the local boy started right in to puncture it with little delay as possible. He didn't seem to care whether the crowd got a run for its money or not. Jack was there to vindicate himself before the public and to say he did it to the satisfaction of everybody would be expressing it mildly.

The men entered the ring at 10:20 and time was called at 10:28. They were on their feet but a moment, and when they went to the mat Isrlinger was on top, but he didn't have time to congratulate himself before he found himself underneath. From then on it was fast and furious with Harbertson pushing the battle every minute and on top most of the time. Whenever the latter couldn't muss up the foreigner any other way he would just pick him up and then slam him down on the mat just for its general effect. This together with the ribs from the crowd appeared to rattle Isrlinger's temper just a little and that bloody nose was an additional annoyance. But that didn't seem to affect Jack any. The latter appeared to be trying to make up his mind just where would be the best place to lay Henry out. He finally decided, after trying several spots, that the north-east corner of the ring was the softest place, so he rolled and got the elusive European over there, turned on the juice and it was all over. Time, 24 minutes. Method (in technical terms) head scissors and bar.

Then you should have heard 'em yell. If Isrlinger had a friend in the house nobody knew it, for the noise seemed to emanate from every person there.

The next fall was obtained so quickly that it is hardly worth talking about. Jack just grabbed Isrlinger, slammed him around a couple of times to show the latter that he still disliked him, pulled him over on the soft spot again and put on the clamps, this little clincher to Jack's argument that he is the best man taking a small matter of five and a half minutes to prove. The fall was obtained with an identical hold to that used before—a head scissors and bar lock.

Through it all Karty, Jack's trainer, and to whom, perhaps, a great share of the credit for the local man's victory should be given, sat in Jack's corner quite unconcerned and with a smile on his face which spoke of the certainty of the outcome. Karty has wrestled both men, so he knew.

Two interesting preliminaries kept the crowd keyed up for the big event of the evening, the first, that between Marlen Peyton and Chester Shearer, both of Ogden, ending in a draw, and the second resulting in a victory for Arthur Chester of Pocatello over Harold Parry of this city. Chester, gaining one fall in eleven minutes, but failing to accomplish anything in the remaining 19 minutes allotted them.

Jack Childs refereed the main go in his usual efficient manner and Fred Preshaw did the honors as official announcer, introducing the men who took part in the different events as well as Chris Jordan of Cleveland, O., who will meet Karty in a finish match at Salt Lake next Tuesday evening.

Washington, June 20.—President Wilson and some members of the cabinet will go to Baltimore tomorrow to attend the wedding of Secretary McAdoo's son, Francis H. McAdoo, to Miss Ethel Preston McCormick of Baltimore.

A sentence of 60 days was imposed upon Wm. Springer by Judge W. H. Reeder this morning when the defendant was found guilty of vagrancy. It was alleged by the officers that Springer had been soliciting for a woman whom he had placed in a local rooming house.

Detective Robert Chambers testified that numerous complaints had been received concerning the actions of Springer on the streets. The detective said that he had knowledge that the man was accosting men near the house and directing them to the woman's room. A little investigation, said the detective, led him to suspect that the complaints had foundation, so he made the arrest.

Detective George Wardlaw said that he had been called on the case when the landlady at the rooming house gave orders to the woman that she had to leave. Wardlaw said that the landlady reported that Springer was taking the money secured by the woman.

Springer denied that he had solicited for the woman in the case. He said he had met her while working in a restaurant in Vancouver, B. C., but had not seen her for three years until he came to Ogden ten days ago. Springer confessed that he uses morphine.

When asked why he did not go to work, the fellow stated that he had an opportunity of working as a waiter in a local cafe. Unfortunately, he said, it was necessary to wear a Tuxedo suit and he had found it impossible to secure one in the city.

ENGINEERS ARE TO ENJOY THE CANYON

The Utah Society of Engineers will invade Ogden canyon tomorrow afternoon on an annual outing at the Hermitage. The train carrying the engineers and their families for Salt Lake will arrive over the Bamberger road at 3 o'clock and the party will go over the Ogden Rapid Transit to the Hermitage.

A short meeting will be held at 4 o'clock at which Charles P. Kahler, electrical engineer for the Oregon Short Line, will read a paper on "Electric Traction." Dinner will be served in the dining room of the Hermitage hotel and the evening will be spent in dancing and music. The company will not return to Salt Lake earlier than about 9 o'clock.

RIBS BROKEN IN AUTOMOBILE SMASH UP

While attempting to pass two large loads of hay in the canyon yesterday afternoon in his automobile, C. A. Hansen got his machine fastened between the heavy wagons and he suffered slight bruises.

Henry Weasler, the veteran cigar maker of this city, who was riding with Mr. Hansen, was quite badly crushed about the body. Two ribs on the right side were fractured.

CAR RIDES FOR THE VISITORS IN JULY 3

The Ogden Publicity bureau is to add the local committee of the Ladies' auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in entertaining the delegates to the national convention in Salt Lake when they come to Ogden on July 3.

The local committee composed of Mrs. L. Demson, Mrs. J. H. Wadleigh, E. O. Halsted and W. D. Murphy met with Secretary Larson late yesterday afternoon and decided upon the plans for the day.

While most of the time will be spent in the canyon, it is planned to have the visitors upon their arrival in Ogden take special street cars for a ride about the city. It is hoped that in that way a fair idea of the city will be gained in the limited time allowed.

WORLD'S MARKETS

WALL STREET. New York, June 20.—Lower prices prevailed in a majority of cases this morning. Large losses were recorded by some of the less active shares. Norfolk & Western and Canadian Pacific lost 1-4. Fluctuations among the leaders were restricted to small fractions.

Professional traders took their cue from abroad today and declines of American securities in London were extended here. Cable advices indicated further uneasiness over political and financial developments. Bear traders were encouraged to resume operations by the indifferent support for the market this week. Declines reached one to two points in many instances, although there was none of the recent selling that characterized downward movements. Prices went down in orderly fashion, with intervals of dullness. Unfavorable conditions in the copper market affected the metal issues. Bonds were heavy. Some improvement over the low prices of the morning resulted when traders bought stocks to cover, but the demand was not very persistent and trading became extremely quiet on the rise. With the supply from foreign markets cut off by completion of London selling, which aggregated 20,000 shares, traders were obliged to bid higher for stocks and the market advanced. Reading scored a full recovery but the rest of the list came to a halt about midway between the lowest of the forenoon and yesterday's close.

Wheat—Subsequently weakness increased because of big primary receipts but the market soon rallied. The close was easy at 90 7/8 for September, a loss of 1-8c net. Corn—A bearish reaction followed owing to prospects that in the next few days rain would cover the belt. The close was weak with September 3-4c net lower at 61 7/8c.
